Giant Snakes on the Loose in Small Michigan Town

Residents in Terror

Residents of Paw Paw, Michigan are spooked by giant snakes that have been sighted throughout the town. There have been multiple sightings of huge pythons in the small town causing much panic and terror among citizens. Some are so frightened that they won't even go outside. We spoke to one resident who saw one of these creatures, Bob King.

Bob had this to say: "I saw one of them in my yard. it had to be about 30 feet long and was very fat. It must've eaten a lot of cats and dogs. I was really terrified, I haven't gone outside in days." Think Bob is exaggerating? Well according to John Smith, a reptile expert there actually have been pythons that have measured 30 feet.

If you are wondering how these snakes ended up on the loose John says that some people decided to release their pets because they no longer want them. There is currently a team of hunters working to catch these snakes. The snakes will then be given to zoos throughout the State.
